Fourteen Thousand People Witness Exciting Racing.

Lively Speculation and Lucky Picking of Winners Force Three Bookmakers to Retire-Exile Wins the Steeplechase for Qualified Hunters -The Entries for Tomorrow.

Fourteen thousand people passed through the gates of the course of the Washington Jockey Club at Benning yesterday afterroon and witnessed the best card ever prepared by the organization for one day's sport. It was a crowd which numbered the great and the small and the wealthy and those who had little more than the price of the ticket, but they formed a great, enthusiastic assembly which cheered until hoarse and went away happy and contented. Members of the Diplomatic Corps occupied several private boxes, while Senators and Representatives and Government officials were plentiful. So great was the gathering that it gave standing room only in the grandstand and clubbouse and swarmed over into the walks and the paddock and formed a solld mass of humanity in the betting ring. Dame Fashion and Sir slang became the proper thing during the

Either from a fear of the stiff jumps or from lack of schooling in their porses the owners of seven of the fourteen notice, the owners of seven at the centries scratched their candidates. The other seven made a good run over a portion of the three mile course, but only three horses finished, four having taken tumbles while trying to op the timber, Diver, $ to 5, proved a false favor-ite, and gave up in disgust when he struck the flat and started home. Hugh Jennings on the Reduction of the League Circuit.

Action of the Magnates Not in Harmony With Sound Business Principles-The Crack Player Talks of His Probable Transfer to Philadelphia and Matters of Interest.

In an interview with a Times reporter with reference to the present baseball outook. Hugh Jennings said that the situalion is a peculiar one from the standp int tion is a peculiar one from the standp int of an outsider unacquainted with League methods or motives, that seemed to inspire the magnates in their recent action in reducing the League membership. It seemed to him, said Jennings, that the action of the batting order of the teams:

Y. M. C. A.—Greene, 1b.; Mills, 2b.; Atchison, es.; Herring, ff. and 3b.; Shaw, 3b. and lf.; Raab, c.; Tillman, rf.; Karris, p. and rf.; Davidson, cf.; Catchings, cf.; Nichelson, rf. and p.; Bache, c. tion taken was not in harmony with sound business principles or actuated by a wise and prudent consideration of the con iitions confronting them.

tions confronting them. While the reduction of the League membership might, and likely would, result in M. A. C ...... more satisfactory financial results for the time being, yet in the end he thinks it will inevitably result in financial disaster, if not the magnates' overthrow as national mentors of the game. The people of the country, in Jennings' opinion, are becoming tired of trusts and bosses, wherever these evils prevail, and the man or combination of men who seek to establish a nonopoly of the business of the national sport and assume to say who shall or who shall not have an opportunity to witness these professional contests will find that they are up against a public sentiment that will drive them out of the business.

When asked with reference to the rumo that he would probably play with the Philadelphia Club, Jennings said:

"I think I could so to Philadelphia under very favorable auspices, but Hanlon deems my services of such value that he has turned a deaf ear to all overtures or pro-positions made him by that club, and this is what makes me sore. I have always been a friend to Ed Hanlon and we are friends today. I have given him and the clear the Liverpool. His rider was uninjured. Mr. Forepaw and Champion tripped on the same jump, throwing their riders, who remounted, but failed to force the horses to take the next jump. Be-ky Rolfe went down jast, tossing Mr. Galloway over services. Yet I think I have carned a promotion and if Hanlon is not in condition to offer it to me he ought not to stand in the way of my ambition, which all will admit is a laudable one.
"It is not altogether a matter of dollars and cents with me-there is a sentiment that all professional ball players feel who have made a reputation in the business—that is common in all avocations of life—to advance and reach the limit of their possibilities. Just what I shall do I have not yet decided fully. I will not, however, be out of the game. My present employ-ment with the Cornell Club is not only pleasant, but satisfactorily remunerative. and I can remain where I am for the full season. An additional inducement for me to remain with them is, that I would have the advantage of collegiate instruction in the way of lectures and otherwise that will be of great advantage to me."

When asked his opinion as to the status of Rebinson and McGraw with reference to the St. Louis Club, he said: "I have not talked to the boys for a long time and the only thing I know or can think about it, is what I see in the news-papers, which you know are not always reliable. Robbie and McGraw are men of good judgment, with business instincts of a high order, and in my opinion I do not believe they will turn down the very flattering offer that has been made them, which will add $8,500 to McGraw's ex-chequer, and about $6,000 to that of Robble. I know I would not, nor do I believe they will. Yet they are very determined when they make up their minds."

In speaking of the new playing rules, Jennings believes that the abolishment of the double umpire system will prove a serious mistake, particularly in the new eight-club organization, where the teams are more evenly matched in playing strength and the games will be more hotly and stubbornly contested. One umpire cannot properly judge a close play on any of the bases from his position behind the bat or pitcher, and contentions and dis-order upon the ball field, which it has been contended were a serious detriment to the pleasure of the sport, will increase fourfold.

In speaking of the "reserve rule" he said that was necessary, and was the calvation of the game, and no intelligent ball player will object to it. There is one clause, however, that he thinks is unjust and unfair, and ought to be amended. That is the sale or transfer of a player. In Jennings' opinion the player should be con suited and his consent obtained, and he should not be forced to go with a club that, for some personal, private ceason, was obnexious to him. Besides, said Jennings, the system is wrong in principle and establishes a serfdom that is repug

Brooklyn, he said, not as strong as were the old Orioles he believed it would be stronger than last The statements made that Hanion bad made some extravagant offers for some of the Philadelphia stars is all in the game, says Hughey, and intended for ad-

Georgetown Adds Another Victory to a Splendid Record.

The Bultimoreans Clearly Outclassed at the Bat and in the Field-A Carnival of Heavy Stick Work in the Third Nets Eight Runs for the Blue and Grey-A One-Sided Game.

The game between the Johns Hopkins and the Georgetown teams, on the local grounds yesterday, was an uneven and uninteresting event, as is shown by the topheavy score of 14 to 3 in favor of the locals Last season when the Marylanders were here, they were defeated by a score of 15 to 0, and up to the eighth inning it looked as if that score would be duplicated, but the Oriole lads pulled themselves together and pushed one run across the plate in that inning, and made an addiional tally in the ninth, of two more. The Maryland boys were clearly out classed, were weak at the bat, and stupid on the bases, and were guilty of tin ghastly errors that contributed materially to the large score made by the Georg:town boys. Miller was the only man among the visitors who distinguished himself. He made one run, had one put out, and six assists, and no errors, which, in con-trast to the work accomplished by other members of the team, is worthy of men-

The locals batted and ran bases at will scoring sixteen safe hits and making four-teen runs. They scored one in the first on a base on balls, an out, and a single. The third was a heart-breaker for the visitors. The varsity boys inaugurated a batting rally that was furiously effective and pleasing to the home fans, and at the close of this slugging tournament eight runner had crossed the plate. Walsh was the most conspicuous artist in this wielding of the bats, and led his team with four safeties to his credit. Of the other scores, two were made in one fifth and three in

UTILITY OF OLD SILVER.

All must feel in a measure grateful t the genius who first cone-ived the idea of utilizing the silver ornaments of worn-out pocketbooks and bags with which to make picture frames. Indeed, many o these pieces are really things of beauty both in design and hand modeling, and have been no small item in the original cost of the card case or pocketbook. It has always been felt to be a pity to sell cluding a dead one, and who have girdled the earth three times are rare; but Philadelphia, for all that, has one.

He is Alexander de Moffi, a full-blooded negro, from the French island of Martinique, in the West Indies. He arrived here a few days ago from a port in the Mediterranean and is staying at 627 Lombard Street. English is about the only tongue that he has met with in his long cruises that he has met with in his long cruises round the world and yet has not master. and have them made into a picture frame or mirror. The imagination can readily follow the manner in which it is done. Both of the silver pieces, it will be re-membered, are moided in the shape of a speaks French fluently, that being the idlom of his native island. Spanish he picked up in the neighboring islands of Coba and Porto Rico, and German he learned while in Hamburg two years ago. Besides these he speaks with more or less fluency Russian, Hungarian, and Italian.

De Moffl asked a man whom he met at Chestnut and Ninth Streets last vight for money with which to buy food. He spoke in German.

The incongraity of the guitural tones and the black face at once frew a crowd. Where the two pieces come together a little soldering is skillfully placed so that little soldering is skillfully placed so that the joining is almost imperceptible. The fancy mirrors that are made out of these bits of silver are also extremely rary to have at least four pieces, and they are prettiest when the corners are round.

A quainter idea is, if one has the means, to attach to one a handle made out of one of the old to one a handle made out of one of the old sliver knitting needle cases which were used by our grandmothers, and which, upon occasions, were so discreetly tacked by them in front of their bodices. They are very long and shaped like a small cornucupia extending into a little curve at the downward end. For the handle of a mirror of such a design as those made from the referred to pieces of sliver nothing could be smarter. Of course, not every family has one of these needle cases in ing could be smarter. Or course, not every family has one of these needle cases in readiness to put to such a use, but they can sometimes be found and bought for rather a small price at one of the artique shops, although they are now becoming snops, attnough they are now becoming scarce. Such mirrors are artistic and luxurious and appear well when lying upon a drawing-room table. A visitor is sure to pick it up and ex mine it while arranging her veil and piece-nez to perfection before she is greeted by the hos-tess. Bag clasps also can be readily made into mirrors, and, being quite large, but two of them are required. In fact, it

Twenty Men Will Go to Paris to Try for International Honers.

The Team Will Also Compete in the English. Austrian, and German Games-Couch Ellis Ward Has Several Winning Crews-School Teams the Centrals Will Meet at Relays.

PHILADELPHIA, April 7.-With the abandonment of indoor training by the track team this week, all the athletic teams of the University of Pennsylvania are working out doors. The spring of 1900 promises to be the most successmful athletic season in the history of the University. Crew, track, and baseball teams are all much stronger than last year, and for the first time cricket and lacrosse have been taken up and there are between forty and fifty candidates for each of these teams.

The number of candidates for the track team has increased to 160, and Mike Murphy is pleased with the outlook for the Intercollegiate Team, which he thinks will be stronger this year than last. Murphy is busy now developing men for the three teams to represent Pennsylvania in the relay races on the 28th. The two and four mile teams will be faster than a year ago, and there will not be much difference in the one mile team, although the loss of Tewksbury will be noticeable. In the long races Pennsylvania will have some fast teams to run against Princeton, Yale, Columbia, and Cornell in the two mile, and Cornell and Yale in the four mile. A larger team than was at first an nounced will be taken to London and Paris. Pennsylvania is after the largest number of points as well as the highest number of firsts, and will therefore take abroad some fast "second string" men, increasing the number of the team to twenty. A project is now on foot to send the London and Paris team to the German and Austrian championships, which take place in Berlin and Vienna within ten days after the close of the Paris games. Judging from the present strength of the team, Pennsylvania men believe that the Red and Blue can win the four foreign dual meet with the University of California will occur about ten days before the Mott Haven games. The events will be the same as in the Yale-California meet and Pennsylvania expects most of the contests to be close. Couch Eilis Ward is giving the crew me Couch Eillis Ward is giving the crew men an unusually large amount of long, hard work, and is bringing all the crews around fast. Pennsylvania has but five eights on the water, as Ward did the "weeding" act early in March, just before the men left the machines for the water. He will have about the same make-up in the 'Var-sity boat as last year, only three of the old men being ineligible. The second crew is much faster than in 1858 and has beaten is much faster than in 1899, and has beaten the 'Varsity several times in practice. Ward will not say what he expects the freshmen to do, but it is evident from the attention he is giving them that he thinks well of their prospects. The first race is which the crews will appear will be in the Decoration Day regatta on the Schuylkili Pennsylvanin's baseball team is expecte to give a good account of itself during the season just opened. Irwin has developed a team of good fielders and hard hitters from a lot of raw material, giving the Quakers one of the best nines they have had in ten years. The team will take thr one to the South, one to the East, and or to the West, the latter after commencement in June. Spring football practi has begun in earnest and every afterno Coach Woodrull has fifteen candidates ou for an hour, giving them work in th run. The football schedule for next fall has been about completed. There games with Harvard, Cornell, Brown cago, Carlisie Indians, Lafayette, Lehigh, Annapolis Naval Academy, Franklin and Marshall, Haverford, Columbia, Virginia, as follows: Harvard, November 10; Cor-nell, November 29; Carlisle Indians, November 17; Chicago, November 2; Colum-bia, October 29. Pennsylvania men are looking forward with much interest to the appearance of the Central and Western High Schools of Washington in the relay races. The work of the Washington boys in '97 and '98 has not been forgotten and the men often re count the story of the Central School overwhelming victories. Mike Murpi even remembers the individual running Mike Murphy the boys and is expecting them to do the same sort of work this year. In the clars with the Washington schools are Central High of Philadelphia, the University of Philadelphia, the Newark, N. J., High High of Philadeiphia, in N. J., High School, and Montciair, N. J., High School of these the fastest are Central of Philadelphia and Montclair. The Quaker delphia and Montelair. The Quaker School has much improved since last year and this race should prove one of the most exciting and interesting of the day.

Central School of Washington will have only one man of last year's team, W. D. Dear, who is also captain of the track team. Dear is the champion schoolboy sprinter of the District and fast at the The other three boys will probably be A. F. Curtiss, H. Williams, and W.
